Prez Dez Sez . . .

Good day to everyone. I hope you all have a great fourth of July. I will be with the family, relaxing, cooking on the grill, and hopefully enjoying the weather.

I will return from vacation on July 9th so if you’re trying to find me I’m hiding.

The next few words will be on something near and dear to us all.

BOCONEO has grown for the last few years and we are proud to have all of you as members. I have stated this before. I know that everyone is busy but it seems that the same few people keep volunteering for the good of the order but many do not. I realize its difficult, but, if you can help please do so. I talking about the golf outing sponsors and the BOCONEO Conference for 2009. We need sponsors for our organization at these events. Right now we have very few. If everyone finds just one, we will have enough for our scholarship fund for next year. If not we won't. The scholarship fund helps our members' children offset the high cost of college education. You know the difference that can make in yours and your children’s lives. Average lives can be elevated with a good education, and we as an organization have been able to make a difference to many students in past years.

Please get involved even if its just one sponsor you can bring.

The Conference will be here too soon and we also need more people to help. Please contact Phil Seybolt or myself if you can help even if just for a few hours.

Remember many hands make light work…

Thank you all for helping and thank you all for your anticipated help in the future.

Please have a safe and joyful July 4th.

OBOA Report from Phil Seyboldt . . .

Ladies and Gentlemen: The following are my notes from the OBOA board meeting held in Cincinnati on Thursday, June 21st, 2007.

1. This meeting was the second of two meetings held in Regional Chapter territory during the 2007 season. SWOBOA welcomed the OBOA Board of Directors to their regular meeting at the Hartwell Recreation Center In Cincinnati. South West Ohio Building Officials Association then sponsored a picnic lunch after the meeting. It was a long drive from Cleveland, but a very nice experience.

2. The City of Dublin has now formally filed their lawsuit in Franklin County Court of Common Pleas. The suit will not postpone the effective date of the Residential Code of Ohio, which is now in effect. All local conflicting codes and ordinances were nullified by the new code as of May 26th, 2007. If you are not sure of the procedure for presenting local codes for review by the residential Code Advisory Committee you should consult the BBS website’s document page for instructions.

3. On behalf of the Board of Building Standards, Director Sharon Myers, who is a Plans Examiner at the State Division of Industrial Compliance, reported that a meeting was held last week of the new Fire Service Ad Hoc committee. This is a committee set up by Gerry Holland, Chairman of the Board of Building Standards, to help the building and fire services work out their traditional rivalries and begin a new era of cooperation. The new State Fire Marshal, his assistant, BBS Executive Secretary Billy Phillips, and several members of the Board of Building Standards, including Chairman Holland, were all in attendance. The meeting went well and everyone in attendance left the meeting with a sense of accomplishment. The group will meet regularly to work on cooperation between the groups in the enforcement of the building and fire codes.

4. There was a discussion on the lack of participation at the Rochester, New York ICC Code hearings that were just concluded. Only a small handful of individuals attended from Ohio, and the Board felt that one of the reasons for the low turnout is that employers - that is, jurisdictions, including the State of Ohio itself - do not understand the importance of taking part in the development of the codes. Staff members of the BBS were not even encouraged to attend the hearings. The Board felt that letters to the Director of Commerce explaining the importance of Ohio's participation in the code change process might be helpful. Anyone that feels that a letter to his or her jurisdiction would be helpful can request one from the Board as well.

5. One of the more important messages from the Board of Building Standards through Sharon Myers was on the Energy Code. The BBS has adopted the 2006 International Energy Conservation Code (IECC) for use as the commercial energy code effective on July 1st. Residentially, the 2006 IECC has also been adopted, but it will not take effect until January 1st of 2008. Until then an applicant has the option of using the 2003 edition of the IECC or the 2006 edition. One reason that the adoption of the new residential rules were postponed is that 3 1/2-inch fiberglass batts will largely become obsolete with the new code, and the extension will give suppliers time to adjust their inventories accordingly. There is also a new version of ResCheck available for use with the 2006 Edition of the Energy Code. Click here to download the latest version of RESCheck http://www.energycodes.gov/rescheck/download.stm It still permits performance trade-offs, and reportedly if a 90% efficient furnace is used in a new dwelling unit the walls can stay much the same as they always were. You will hear more about this at the compulsory classes that the BBS is sponsoring.

6. There is no news to report on the code book distribution by the BBS that is coming up, nor is there any news on the development of a lending library for test reference books. I hope that we will all hear more about these topics in the very near future.

7. Several new Residential Code of Ohio code classes are now available from OBOA, including a 3-hour presentation developed by BOCONEO on Chapter 1 and 2 of the RCO dealing with administration of the code. We will present one or more of these classes during our 2008 education program. You are reminded that Jim McReynolds is in the process of taking control of our education committee, so let Jim know if you have preferences for classes that you would like to see next year. He can be contacted at jmcreynolds@bedfordoh.gov

8. The Toledo Joint Conference committee gave a good report on their progress. They meet twice per month to review progress on their conference. Our own BOCONEO Joint Conference team will be meeting again during the month of August. If you are not already on our team, now is the time to join. We will need the time and skills of many of our members to make our conference a successful event. Email me at pseyboldt@bedfordoh.gov if you are interested in joining.

9. Finally, I want to remind everyone that BOCONEO will be sponsoring both a 30-hour electrical code class and a 30-hour plumbing code class beginning this September or October. Both classes will be based on the new editions of the codes. New 2008 electrical code books will be included in the cost of that class. The details for both of these classes are being finalized at this writing, so watch for the announcements and save your education dollars to patronize BOCONEO classes this fall. Both classes will conclude in time to recertify before the end of the year if necessary.
